ARTHUR LEITNER

Born in 1986 in France, Arthur Leitner has a degree in architecture. During his years studying, he realized that working on a smaller scale by designing furniture and objects suited him better as it was more in tune with his creations. In order to pursue his interests, he worked for the studio Campana in Brazil where he developed a special interest in Brazilian culture and craftsmanship. Back in Paris, he worked at Louis Vuitton for two years. He also participated in developing the Nomade collection, alongside the biggest names in design and crafts. In 2013, Arthur opened his own studio whilst continuing to work on projects for Humberto and Fernando Campana, for the Kreo Gallery or on larger projects in Japan.

« Self-taught, I proceed empirically: the conception of a shape or of an idea that can spring from a material, a movement, a specific know-how, or also from more abstract notions such as emotions, moods and feelings. During my creative process, I emphasize on the impact of sharing my work and ideas with partners, editors, craftsmen, which enhances and conveys my original ideas. »

BASIL
SIDE TABLES
ARTHUR LEITNER

Edition : 2014

BASIL...
ACCORDING TO ITS DESIGNER :

« The wish to use the natural qualities of cork resulted in the creation of BASIL, a set of side tables. The steel structure sets in motion the metallic aerial structure and the density of the cork tabletop. The geometric shapes contribute to the simple aesthetics of a piece which is stripped down to its essentials. »

The side tables BASIL were born from the desire of Arthur Leitner to use the natural qualities of cork. He has associated the solidity and lightness of a structure in steel with a geometric table top in cork (sphere, pyramid, parallelepiped). The strength of the object comes from its simple aesthetic and it is without complexes that BASIL can move from a side table next to a sofa to a bedside table.
